Mass Hypnosis? Is it possible? Taking a step back from the extreme “akashic” readings of this manual ie the nxxs-blog ATA journal/zine, let's ponder this relatively new and hopefully shortlived phenomenon known as Flat Earth.

In brief summary, Flat Earth-ers are currently raging upon the world-wide internet, especially on the video-internet (Youtube as they call it). Videos purporting to reveal the hidden mysteries of the Earth by claiming that we actually do in fact live in a non-globe Earth that is flat. These videos were easier to ignore a year or two ago, but now have sprung up into the millions of views category.

The views are mostly positive views with thumbs up and little to no videos against the Flat Earth Theory, which is odd. In other words, the “Globers” are ironically not given much voice and the pro-Flat Earth-ers or Flat Earth Society as they call it are given a preferential stance on what they have considered to be a valid topic. Looking through the history of mass hysteria, one can find evidence of strange behaviors in society that have started small in one or two persons and managed to work their way up into many individuals all acting on the same accord. For example, the case of a convent that meowed like cats or the Salem Witch Trials, etc. And then one must consider the relationship between mass hysteria and its historical incidents and the idea of mass hypnosis which this phenomenon may categorically be placed.

Examples of mass hypnosis are somewhat varied from that of mass hysterias, but they are inter-related. Mass hypnosis seems to have a more political side to it. This is because hypnosis deals with the repetition of statements to provoke a kind of mindless adherence. This type of effect is attempted by marketing/television adverts and fascist politicians. However, the Flat Earth because it is currently ongoing, has not yet been categorized as a prime example of mass hypnosis because the quote-unquote society of it will take offense and by sheer numbers force the naysayers to be brandished as “ignorant” or such similar undesirable descriptives.

So is Flat Earth a political movement, still yet untapped by a controller-politician willing to convert the mass hypnotic energy into propaganda? Was the Flat Earth movement created by a sinister force of political measures? Or more probably was it just a small idea at first prompted by previous conspiratorial videos and theories with incorrect dogmatic literature sources and theologies-gone-wrong and through mass hysterical/hypnotic conversions converted within a few months into a mass movement on the internet? Possibly this is an effect of the internet's ability to influence the mental-scape of the individual in a near-hypnotic state, devoid of reason, and create social groupings around such ignorance. Maybe it puts them in a trance and with the aid of multiple wills a form of stage magic or minor sorcery is affecting the total mental processes of the individuals supporting the movement becoming a chain-of-will in a mass destruction. As Ouspensky points out, and is well known, that the masses always destroy the works of the individual and they are more like a jellyfish than an higher organism.

Recently I acquired a paperback version of F. Hartmann's Magic: White and Black. It is an excellent read. It is of the highest initiatory quality. I had been looking for a copy of this book for about seven years with no luck. I would have bought an old hardcover of it if I saw it. I was a resale bookseller during that time.

It is a book of initiatory magic. The title is meant to deter the uninitiated. It is a curveball. Hartmann does not pretend to denounce black magic since he was into (and involved in) classical theosophy. This is because of a lost realism reaching back into Victorian and Blavatskian times in which they did not formulate doctrinal prisons or theological conundrums.

It is clear from the start that this book will not appeal to the lower senses or those seeking a thrilling occult/ceremonial new-age text. It has nothing to do with that and many will not even notice such a variance. I am glad I have read it and it served its purpose of bringing me closer to Master Hartmann, even if for a brief time as an Initiator and not as a sole Guide into the truth of occultism and magic (which are the same).

Anyone that can recognize the truth of this book and attempt to comprehend it with actual working wisdom and practical approach, shall also realize the value of Hartmann's words and soul. It is a grade A book without flaw and with full intention to assist in the occult initiatory realization of the seeker who has already learnt a great deal of sciences and various methods who needs to better clarify and concentrate towards accessing the "akashic."

I personally recall the first time I bought a Smartphone or Android Phone. Around the time of 2010 or 2011 I was constantly trying to improve my psychic readings. Psychic is a term loosely used in this context. I was a little late in getting this technology. It may have been out a couple years before I tried it because it helped me to make money selling used books.

One of the reasons I had skill in psychic work was because during college I used to wear noise-muffs on the ears for prolonged stretches of time. I also experimented with sensory deprivation, but not much. The ear-muffs for sound were sensory deprivation and it seemed to help my inner concentration and musical awareness. In those days I especially wanted to improve the musical ear through any means available.

After college and some years forward I began an interest in more book learning and actual study of the occult sciences. This was branching out from mysticism and general metaphysical spirituality, some basis in Christianity and then also psychedelic and natural shamanism as well. By 2009 I had personal lessons in Tarot from a highly trained and revered teacher.

In late 2010 or 2011, a heightened form of psychic work was being done. I had access to a very quiet water setting in which to live, so it was perfect for reaching out further into the possibilities of science in the spiritual/metaphysical/occult sense of the term without bounds. I was practicing any type of game that could increase intuition and subtle awareness and this even with microtonal sound. Most would agree that it was a dangerous way to approach stuff like that, but I had enough natural inclination to do so and would probably not recommend it to others.

For the record, let it be known that the very day that I unboxed that so-called Smart-phone with Android OS I could hear the phone when it was turned on, even in the next room over from where I was sitting. This bothered me greatly. I found it quite strange and absurd. I found a shielded box to place it in when I did not want to use it and I made sure to keep it turned off most of the time when it was not necessary.

In analysis, it seemed to me at that very time of this discovery that the energy it was giving off was destructive to any elite psychic work. It seemed to block off the quietness of mind and heart necessary for seeing in the other. I defined this noisy device as a kind of bio-magnetic or mind-wave interference phone. I did not immediately take the stance of paranoia or suspicion. I felt that the technology itself was inferior and had to utilize so much of the etheric current around the person's body who was using the Smartphone at the time. Lastly of course I was frustrated with the fact that the 99.95% of people around me did not notice the subtle etheric interference caused by these most basic of Smartphones. I've owned a few phones like this since then, using them from time to time not all the time and being conscious of their operation as much as casual.

Do they purposely interfere with the etheric bio-magnetic sphere of the body? In some regards yes, but most likely the technology is inferior to actual occult science and utilizes the airwaves in a way that will someday be considered absurd and incredibly obsolete. Life was different before the electromagnetic towers everywhere and most conscious people were alarmed by the immediate obsession of cell phones around the turn of the century/millennium.

I did not feel sick from the emanations of the Smartphone. I could sense its operation even from the distance of another room in the apartment. The second it was turned on I could feel the mental energy it produced. Sort of like if you are sensitive to television media programming. The idea is that the air field is a magnetic receptor even without the idea of transmission. It causes pollution of the element of air and even the etheric magnetism is polluted. In other words, a psychic person can pick up the transmissions in the air without seeing the phone or television because it is being transmitted through that medium of air and on a more subtle level the Mind of the person seeing it (psychically, as it is called) can interpret the transmission. This takes years of practice, or natural ability or a combination of both.

It seems that in retrospect, there are frequencies being emitted by the electromagnetic devices that purposely interfere with the etherical element of the human being. However occultists, psychics, and magicians of various sorts have always been known to engage in banishment, cleansing of space and elemental purification before serious investigations into the unknown astral sphere.

Akashic Theory. Free-thought approach to knowledge, with mystical Socratic Method, a quick lecture on the method revealed and revisited.

The most frustrating thing I have seen regarding Akashic Reading and Astral Light is the profanation of the actual meaning of these terms and their incorrect use. I am almost convinced that it cannot be learned by only a very small amount of people which is too bad but at the same, it is to be expected if it genuinely exists.

By Akashic it is meant the Astral. The popularization of the term Akash (from Hindu trad.) is based from Edgar Cayce who used a sleeping astral guide to give him occult knowledge and then he gave it out to people. This is not the method that will work in the long term usages. However I am not concerned with his method. I chose the term Akashic to help gather interest or a slight amount of popularization. It is a level of perception of not only the Astral arena, but also a clear kabalistic method. It is not easy to understand. There are several problems. The biggest issue is the popularization from Cayce regarding it. He had a lot of occult gifts and abilities without a doubt, but he did not go through the rigorous initiatory aspect of the Astral Light. It is very rough to deal with and can cause severe mental strain and nervous agitation resulting in various menacing scenarios unfolding on the physical plane. Regardless of this, when considering what is the Akashic, one must distance preconceptions away from what is known and toward what is unknown.

As far as I am concerned, there is no real Akashic Records or Great Hall. These terms seem to be obvious profanations of states of mind or seership that do not have visual illustration in and of themselves. If you want to believe that there is an Akashic Hall that is your choice, and I am not bothered by that at all. However it still causes me frustration by the sheer lack of questioning involved in rapidly accepting everything that has stemmed from one or two persons rather than a cumulative searching through the ages of written wisdom and comparative study including that of the Book of Tarot, as mystical and unknown as it truly stands, even now.

Check the facts again. Three accepted terms, those being, Akashic Records, The Tarot and Kabala are most certainly new age dogmatism at this point. This could also be known as profanation, materialism or the opposite of free-thinking. Self-delusion can happen at a certain level of occult study. I will also have to maintain a strict check for myself in order to stay level-headed as well. With these three terms vaguely understood and then on top of that several layers of dogmatic theological zaniness from the new age and new-age christianity, etc., there becomes even more problems in explaining that the NXXS Zine is called Akashic as a commentary on the over-use of the term as it stands already.

Therefore simplicity is better, especially from a European or Western creative mindset, and so it serves to simply explain this fact: AKASHIC RECORDS ARE NOTHING BUT...The Astral Current or Astral Light in a more Subtle Refinement than is easily attained by people who have not built up their workings over several cycles of initiatory work. Several levels can deceive the student. He or she may become satisfied and not attempt a further level. Most of the time then they say that they access the Akashic Records at this point and stop there, although it was several levels further. This has something to do with Intellect being applied on par with Spirit and Patience. The same amount of Intellect should be used as is Spiritual Presence and Meditation as well ie skrying if you like to call it that. It does not matter the name or terminology so much. It's the meaning that matters. The meaning of the term, Akashic for NXXS does not mean the same thing as the new age doctrine today means it. It is simply the refined and more subtle Astral Reading. That is all it is. I presume to believe that the Great Hall of Records can only exist within the Seer's Greater Self and not in a place somewhere out there. Also the idea of Akashic Records, or Great Hall existing and that one must seek for it in order to gain enlightenment of some kind is not necessary and could prevent higher development at any cost.

Kabala is very misunderstood. This Kabala is outside of any nationality, ethnicity or tradition. That may be the reason why it is not known about. Nature is the Source of Kabala. Therefore it is Universal and does not need to follow an exact doctrine already laid out for you. It will not be so easy to acquire. However I have personally found out the TAROT has a non-western based Kabala easily discernible within it. The difficult part is isolating oneself from almost everything that has already been said and written about it in order to progress the path of knowledge in a genuine direction. So with this refinement, the help of the One, and the already innate natural intuition that develops with practice and practice and more practice. For example, I performed TAROT readings for myself only every single day of my waking life for several years solid. There were weekends that I did not leave the TAROT altar. This is because I sought for the abstraction of what is known and went to the absolute form and found out that within the absolute (hint: Numerical) form, there is awaiting a serious system that is not written about except for NXXS ATA and will not entirely be followed for a long time.

An Atom was photographed recently and it made the news tonight. It is amazing to perceive that this little dot of light is an Atom. An atom according to the occultists possesses the possibility of consciousness. According to occultism, all of Nature is filled with living reality. A fallen stick off of a tree is not dead. A Planet is a living being, filled with the possibility of living beings and evolutions of those beings including humans, and higher entities. The Sun is ...
